CRC Library Workshop 2014

Background on the speakers and their topics

“Updates from NC LIVE”

Tim Rogers, Executive Director

Jill Morris, Assistant Director

“Technology Competencies: Building Staff Confidence with Digital Resources”

Heather Klein, NC LIVE Member Services Librarian

Troubleshooting digital resource issues can be a challenge for library staff. But after learning a few simple concepts and strategies, all staff can feel confident assisting patrons who are having trouble. Learn about the basics of digital resource authentication, how to identify and address common problems, and strategies for determining who to contact to fix an issue.

“There’s a LibGuide for That! –Getting the Most out of LibGuides”

Suvanida Duangudom, Campus Librarian, Wake Tech

Melanie Gnau, Evening Librarian, Wake Tech

Julia Mielish, Reference/Instruction Librarian, Wake Tech

In trying to do more with less, libraries have found creative ways to use LibGuides beyond traditional subject guides. Some examples of these uses include presentation platforms, instruction tutorials, collaborative space, outreach and marketing tools. Come join Wake Tech librarians in exploring how LibGuides is being used across libraries. Migration and maintenance of LibGuides will also be discussed.

“Rome Wasn’t Built in a Day: Basics of Starting an Institutional Archives”

Katie Nash, Special Collections Librarian and Archivist at Elon University

This presentation will focus on what it takes to create and maintain a college/university archive. The speaker will discuss the general importance of an institutional archive, what to consider when establishing an archive from ground zero, and essential criteria for maintaining the archive. The importance of establishing and maintaining key relationships with specific campus offices and alumni will also briefly be discussed.

Katie Nash is the Special Collections Librarian and Archivist at Elon University, where she has worked since 2005. She received her MLIS degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, and received a BS degree in Anthropology from Appalachian State University. At Elon, Katie manages the Archives and Special Collections department, which includes oversight and project management for everything from research assistance to processing collections, outreach and marketing to digital projects. Her staff consists of three full-time professionals and one student assistant, and the slogan of the department is “never dull.”

“Copyright Without Fear: Understanding Copyright to Support Library Services”

Will Cross, Director, Copyright and Digital Scholarship Center, NCSU Libraries

Copyright issues impact almost everything we do in the library, from sharing books to managing electronic course materials. The law is designed to support library practice, but too often confusion about copyright leaves librarians uncertain about what they can do to support their educational mission. Join William Cross, the Director of Copyright and Digital Scholarship at NCSU, for a discussion about the purpose of copyright, the scope of the fair use exception, and what you can do on your campus.
